

National Poultry Improvement Plan (NPIP)

What it is –

- The National Poultry Improvement Plan (NPIP) is a cooperative Federal-State-Industry program established in 1935 to eradicate Pullorum-Typhoid Disease.
- Since its inception the program has expanded to incorporate new diagnostic technology and effectively improve poultry and poultry products throughout the country.
- As a result, many egg-transmitted, hatchery-disseminated poultry diseases have been eradicated or controlled.

NPIP Participation–

- NPIP participants include hatcheries, breeding flocks, poultry dealers, processing plants and even states that meet disease control standards.
- Being a NPIP participant allows greater ease in moving hatching eggs and live birds within the state, across state lines, and to other countries.
- The SD Animal Industry Board serves as the Official State Agency for the administration and oversight of NPIP programs in South Dakota.
 - This includes interstate commerce, import/export, disease surveillance, testing, permitting, and disease response plan activities.
